

ABSTRACT

A system comprises an application specific integrated circuit (ASIC) adapted for use in a plurality of circuit configurations, said circuit configurations providing for different numbers of signal channels for further processing using same circuitry of said application specific integrated circuit.